DEVELOPMENT AND PROGRESS.

Application will soon be made to the several towns in the valley from Ashland to Grants Pass for franchises for electric railways. If granted upon the terms asked, the road will be constructed, together with car lines on the streets of the various towns to be as the population would warrant the same.

The privileges to be asked for in the various towns are such as will add to the value of property. The line connecting the towns will increase the value of property along the line and rapidly increase the population surrounding the towns. The country to be traversed by the line has at this time not sufficient population to make the investment one that will bring any returns to the investors, but it must be built with an eye to the future.

To be profitable an electric line should have a population of one thousand per mile. Those building a line with less must undertake it with a view of developing the country.

The granting of franchises in towns is often opposed by citizens who do so conscientiously from an exaggerated idea of the value of the same. The facts are that electric lines in cities of less than fifty thousand do not pay. The street car lines of Portland, when its population was much more, passed through several successive receivers' at great financial loss to the successive owners before they began to pay operating expenses and maintenance. Even with a population of 400,000 the car lines of Portland will return no profits to stockholders for years, because of the expenditures for improvements and extensions.

For many years Salem has had a street railway system which passed through the bankruptcy of several companies. Today in a city of twenty thousand people, this system does not pay.

There are many hundreds of fields more inviting for the electric railway builders than this valley, because of greater population. Investors are seldom controlled by sentiment. They look for dividends and profits. In cities that have large population a car line as soon as put in operation becomes profitable. Such franchises have great value, but those who compare the value of a franchise in a town of ten thousand or twenty thousand with one in Seattle, Portland or San Francisco do so without a proper understanding. Until a town reaches a population of one hundred thousand its inhabitants do not pass the walking distance. The franchises in small towns possess no value except as part of an interurban system. They are necessary to make it a possibly profitable undertaking. Operated without being a part of such system, they have not been and never will be profitable in a city of less population than fifty thousand.

No one will pay for a franchise or submit to unreasonable restrictions for a franchise in cities of less population, for the simple reason that it is not a high-class investment, and would be poor business sense. There are too many communities inviting such investments along liberal lines, and offering encouragement and assistance.

Too often have honest investors been driven away from communities that imagined they were destined to become great cities, and never returned. The towns languished when the proper terms to an investor, who was looking to the possibilities of the future, would have resulted in an activity that would have bounded into an increasing and permanent prosperity.

THE ROUT AND DEFEAT.

The defeat of Heney and election of McCarthy in San Francisco cannot be welcome news to the upright citizen. It is not so much the defeat of Heney as the character of those who prevailed that must make decency and patriotism pause and reflect. Civic honesty has been run over by the offal cart. The result speaks in disparagement of the standards and ideals of our voters, and proves that in some parts of the country our politics is still of the jungle.

It is not only from San Francisco, but Cleveland, where Tom Johnson, after years of self-sacrifice that took him from affluence to poverty while he was making the best governed city in America out of Cleveland, and New York and other cities comes the news that the barbarians are still strong and powerful.

The result takes one back to the conquests of the Huns and Vandals. Was it not Macaulay who said that the Huns and Vandals that would destroy us would come from our great cities? Are they to start from the Golden Gate, under the leadership of Ruef and Schmitz?

We may look for rancorous times in that country. Political debauchery triumphing under the conditions then existing may be expected to turn upon those it calls its prosecutors with the ferocity of the cave men. Revenge will be theirs, and the years of famine must be retrieved in great loot, for the famine may come again.

THE WATER MUDDLE.

If it is a business proposition, the city council should make a compromise with Mr. Hanley, if the right terms can be secured, and so settle for all time the water question.

Mr. Hanley has offered to settle with the city for $20,000, deeding 250 inches of water from Wasson canyon and Little Butte, thus doubling the city's available water supply. The city council offered $12,000, and the offer was refused. Probably a compromise somewhere between these figures could be effected.

The difficulty is that the city has no funds. The $12,000 offered was money that would be saved in cost of pipe by diverting from Wasson canyon instead of continuing to the original diversion point on Little Butte. But the city faces a serious loss if Mr. Hanley continues successful in his blocking tactics through the aid of the court, and the completion of the pipeline is indefinitely delayed, the unfilled wood main permitted to deteriorate and the use of Bear creek water forced.

It is a shame that Mr. Hanley's case against the city for alleged broken contract cannot be settled on its merits in the courts and the right of way suit also disposed of in similar fashion, and it is up to the city authorities to decide whether the city loses most by delay or by compromise, and whether the extra water secured is worth the extra money.

If our supreme court had the control of the publication of lengthy notices of tax sale, perhaps the Oregonian might relent.

SPLENDID VIEWS OF ORCHARDS FOR EXHIBIT

Lawrence Gregory Prepares Set of Orchard Views That Are Marvels of Beauty.

Lawrence Gregory has prepared a set of ten color photos nearly 24 inches square of orchard scenes in the Rogue River valley, which will be watered at the Spokane national apple show to be held this month in a contest for a $100 prize. He also has prepared a large view of an apple tree in bearing which will be entered in a contest for a $50 prize.

The photos are marvels of beauty. The first work of producing the pictures was carefully handled and then each photo was colored with the most painstaking care. The effect is truly splendid and the views should do much good while on exhibition in Spokane.

CLARENCE EDDY MAKES ANOTHER FIND

Is Known in Medford and Over the Northwest as the Poet-Prospector.

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 4.—It is reported from Challis, in Central Idaho, that Clarence E. Eddy has made a very promising strike of three to four feet of ore of Lost Packer character—high in gold and copper. Eddy's new find is by the roadside, about two miles from Loon Center, or Coleman's place, and pans gold even better than the Lost Packer did when he first struck it. The poet-pro prospector has been over there a good portion of the summer prospecting. After doing Nevada, Utah, California and Oregon, he has come back to his first love—the Loon creek district—and believes he has found the mate to the Lost Packer.

Clarence Eddy, the poet-pro prospector, is known in Medford, having at one time been connected with a local paper.
